Note: Shrines always have a lot of big and tall trees near them. Cicada love big and tall trees.

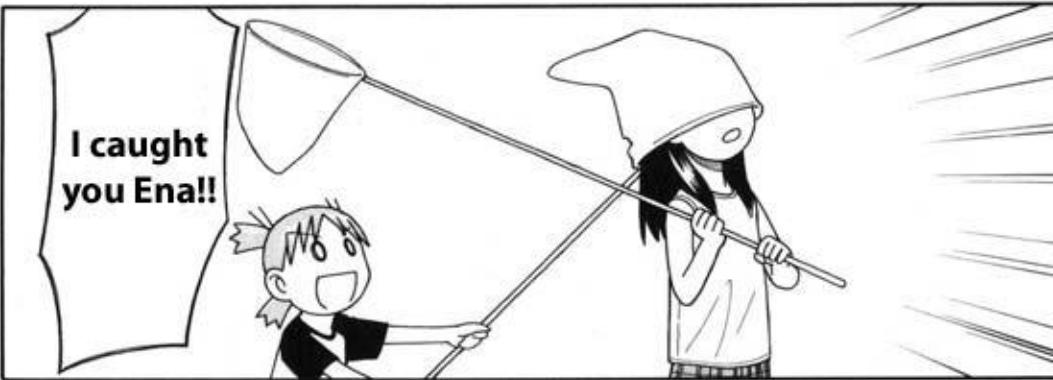

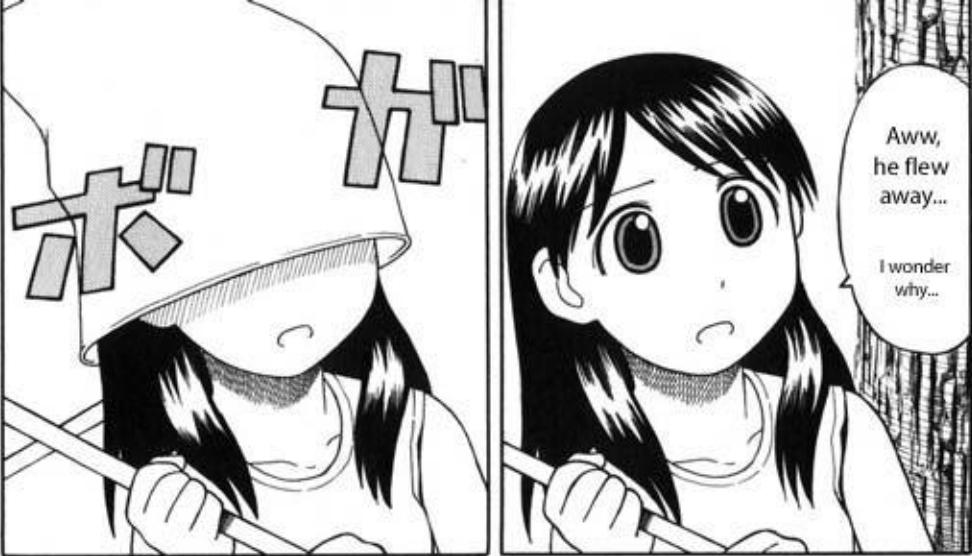

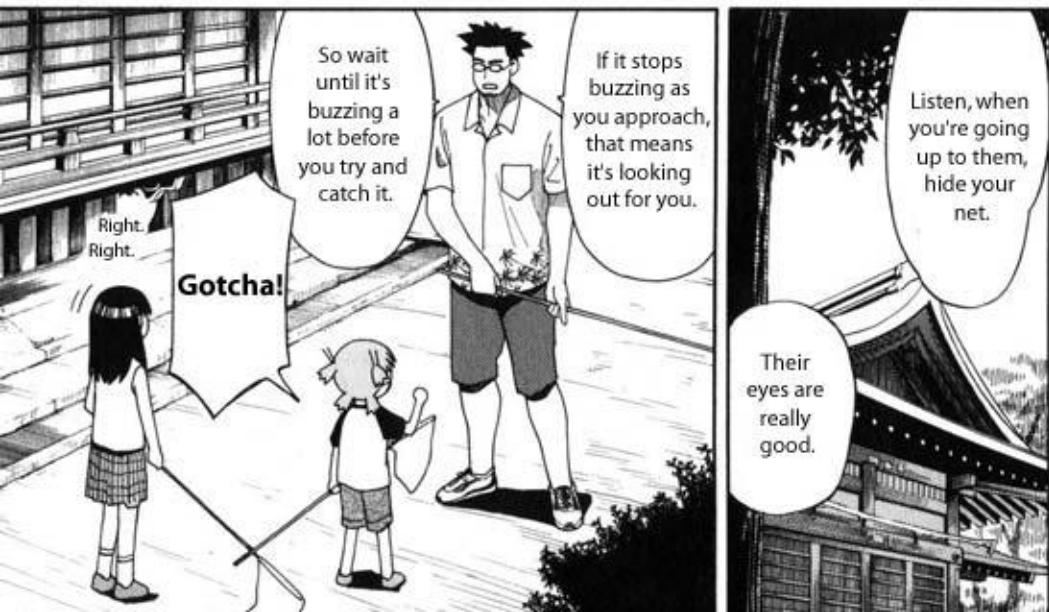

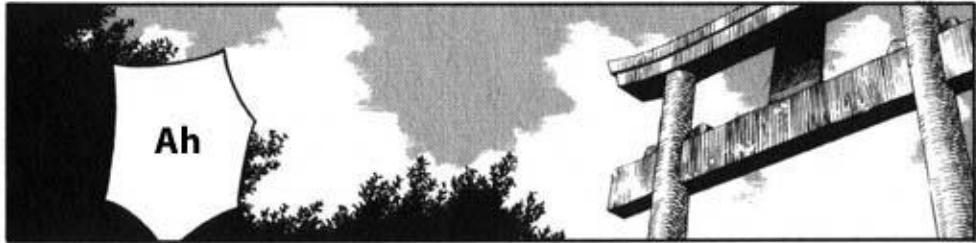

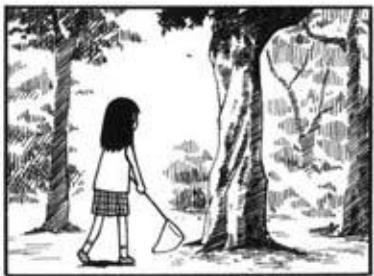

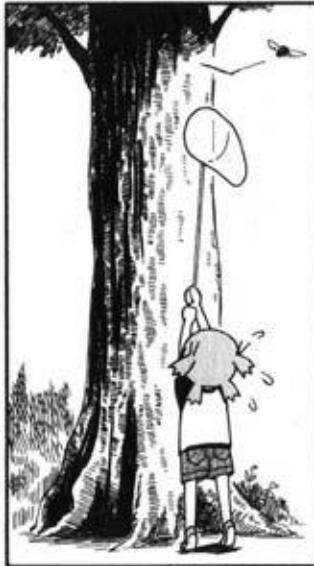

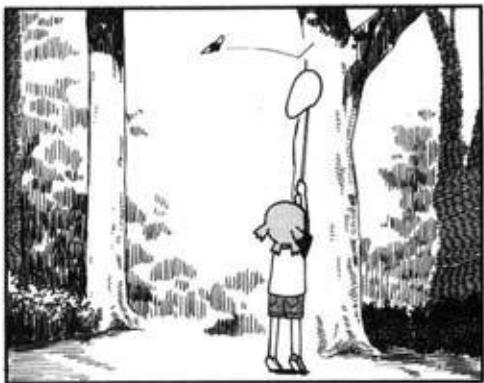

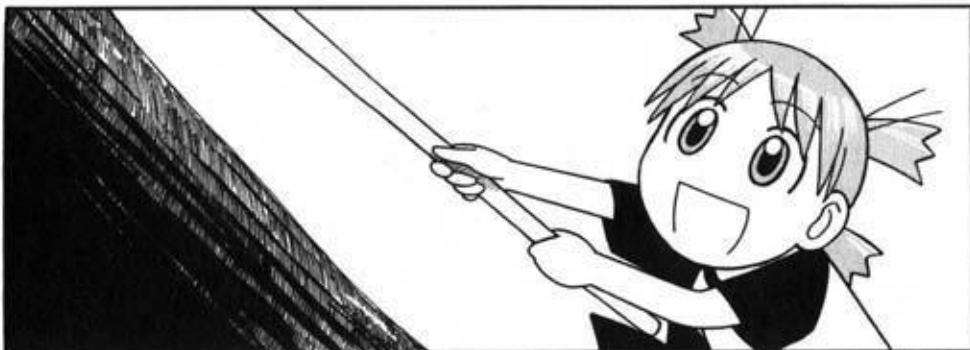

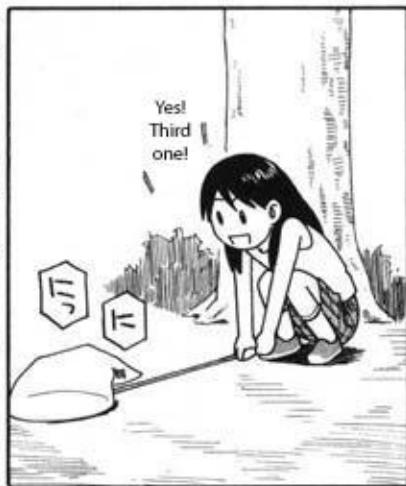

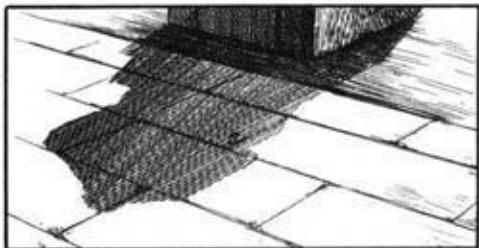

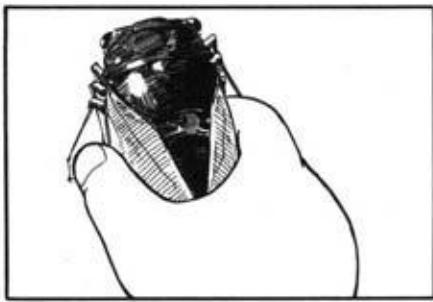

We'll show them!

So what should we do with all these?

You caught a lot Jumbo!!

I wonder...

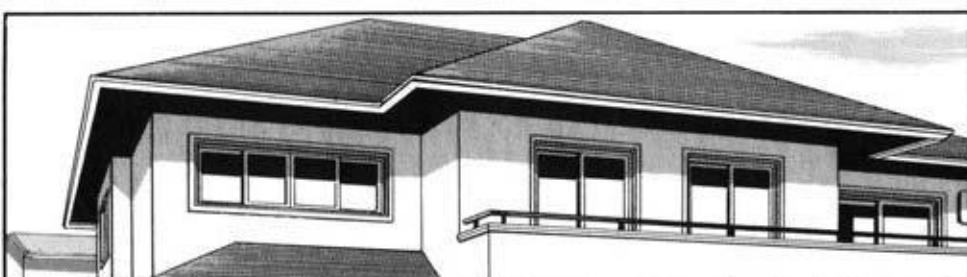

It'll make her happy.

Mom?

We'll show them to mom!

That's a kuma cicada! That's the only one of those we caught today!

It's the biggest there is.

Mom!
We caught cicada!!

and Jumbo-san too, welcome.

Ah, Yotsuba-chan

Note: The kuma in kuma cicada signifies that it's really big. Kuma means bear, but in this case it's referring to the size of a bear, which is why I didn't put "bear cicada." And "huge cicada" would sound too generic after already using "big brown" earlier, so I just left it as kuma.
